

Phil Girlando is Producer and musician. Plays violin, piano, and electric guitar and has over the years proven himself a gifted multi-instrumentalist. He was a pioneer in the use of electric violin on rock music recordings, bringing his skills to many major label recording sessions. For over 20 years, Phil wrote, performed on and produced many national TV commercials for a variety of major brands. He created KEE Management, a management and production company where he was the Music Supervisor. Through Kee, Phil assisted and guided the careers of many major label bands represented. Phil became known as an International Music Producer working closely with bands from Europe.

Elisa's singing career began at the age of twelve, when she signed a deal to record multiple children and holiday albums. By the time she reached college, she had her own band and quickly got picked up with a distribution deal with SONY RED (Sony Music). So far, she released two albums under SONY RED. Additionally, Elisa's voice has been featured on numerous national TV commercials, including the lead vocals in the Claritin commercial singing the classic song, "I Can See Clearly Now."
